

Paul Self co-founded BASIS, a company that developed an artificial intelligence (AI) planning software tool that was acquired by InEight in 2018. Following the acquisition, Paul became a member of InEight's leadership team. He now focuses on expanding upon his vision of delivering next generation planning and scheduling software solutions to the project management community.

Paul is a passionate business leader who takes pride in understanding what clients seek from their business partners: honest rapport, trust, and the delivery of expertise in meaningful and relevant terms. Early in his career, he implemented and consulted on project management solutions for numerous Fortune 500 companies. Paul carries specific expertise in Aerospace & Defense, Government Contracting, and Energy markets and the nuances of how project management practices are applied within each.

Paul holds a business degree in MIS and Finance from Baylor University and an MBA in Finance from the University of Houston.